Accommodation, food, transport and inspiration are all included, with the tour starting and finishing in Adelaide. There's even a "doors off" aerial shoot over Wilpena Pound included so you can photograph the landscape from above.

Truly Special

With a group of just 8 people we offer extremely personal levels of guidance. Two professional photographers on hand for the duration and lots of creative space inside and out of The Prairie Hotel.

There is time and opportunity to gain new skills during the Masterclass, plus an abundance of inspiration as provided by the combination of natural wilderness and Outback homesteads.

Our schedule is designed to let you enjoy the experience, and learn at the same time.

Sunset Spot

The vast open landscape to the west of Flinders Ranges provides an unimpeded view of the sunsets. Even on days of heavy cloud there's always a chance of some sun poking through at the last minute to paint the sky.

Parachilna is one of the best places in the Outback to wait for a sunset, with a camera in one hand and a cold drink in the other.

Parachilna

We chose this little patch of Australia because it's unique, remote and inspiring. On the northern edge of Flinders Ranges the River Gums give way to the wide open Outback, offering a wide range of arid landscapes for creative photography.

The Prairie Hotel is our home away from home, a beautiful and historical establishment that provides exceptional comfort and great cuisine. This oasis in the desert is close to our favourite spots for sunrise and sunset shots, with magnificent views out to the western horizon to watch the last rays of light at the end of every day.

But the best thing about Parachilna are the people. You'll just have to come and join the Masterclass to find out why :)

Heysen

There's an artistic streak in the Flinders Ranges that can't be ignored, not by great painters or landscape photographers. We'll visit the scene of some of Heysen's most majestic inspirations, and have a chance to be inspired ourselves.

Air Time

INCLUDED with this photographic adventure is some dedicated air time over the Flinders Ranges, using specially configured aircraft to shoot “doors off”. This means unobstructed views of the landscape below so you can shoot wide and clean from the safety of your harness.

We’ve designed the schedule to allow for two shoot sessions, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. We’ll draw names at random to fill the sessions. There is no guarantee of weather or preferred slot, just a promise that we’ll do our best to help you get in the air and make the most of the opportunity.
